COMPLAINTS OF TWO INSURANCES

What a Correspondent Says About Unjust Streets and Steamboat Wharves

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CREEDMAN:

The citizens of Portland have reason to thank you for your efforts to improve the conditions under which we live here, and under which many, both residents and visitors suffer much discomfort.

You have drawn the attention of the city to the bad state of the streets as regards cleaning, which is largely due to the repelling of the ordinary street cleaner.

IN THE SOCIAL REALM.

How Portland Has Amused Herself During the Past Week.

A Quiet Week, With Rumors of Gaiety for the Month of October and From Then On.

VANITY FAIR.

The Village Sabbath Morn.

I think the dinters open and greet the morn;

The sun casts rosy plumes alway the morn;

The robin hope and sing up to the morn;

Up! Up! Up! Up! Up!

Over the scene a solemn hush doth steal

As though all nature shud' well obey;

The quiet that makes man's heights to peal:

"My Sabbath, my Sabbath."

Across the scene the church stands bathed in light;

Its walls are girt it with their plumes of green;

And up the glided pathway at the right

The sun sets to his bed, with humble mien;

He looks fair & homely, like his master,

With the accents of his tongue

As of the bell that the joy and woe

Of fifty years its faithful heart had rung.

And another comes with hurried pace,

Laden with care, with love, with joy, with sweet,

With the altar with their twining grace;

And make its curve beauty more complete.

Since early dawn his eager feet have sped

Through the cool paths of pine and brake,

With the light of silvery dew afloat.

These are the gods prepared, O Lord of love!

They made all benedictus for this entering in;

They made His Spirit like a dove;

THE FIELD OF POLITICS.

Blaine Addresses an Audience of 100,000 at New York.

MORE CALLERS ON GEN. HARRISON.

Henry Watterson Speaks at Detroit—A Brief Speech by Thurman—An Address to the Negro Voters—Political Notes.

NEW YORK. Sept. 29.—About 100,000 persons assembled at the polo grounds to-night to hear Gen. George F. C. and other distinguished speakers. The meeting, on the very outset, inaugurated a series of cheers that obtained the meeting itself.

The decorations of the grand stand and on platforms were on a scale of prodigious. Streamers and flags were suspended from the Grand street entrance. The main platform, from which the speakers addressed the meeting, faced Grand street, and was 100 feet distant. On this sat the invited guests and speakers. A dozen bands played national airs during the meeting. Stereopticons were also exhibited bearing on free trade and protection.

President Humphrey of the Harlem Republican club welcomed the people from the north, and then introduced speakers at the same office and introducing speakers at the other stand-about. He first introduced Hon. J. G. Foster, who addressed the crowd. Before him had finished there were two more speakers. Henry Watterson and that gentleman appeared on the platform. A scene of indescribable enthusiasm followed. Cannons were fired, rockets burst in the air, the band struck up "Hail to the Chief" and deafening cheering filled the air.

The chairman then introduced Blaine. He began his address by commanding Gen. Harrison's "remarkable ability in condensing the whole argument within the dimensions of a proverb." The same had been done by Lincoln. Gen. Harrison's traders as "students of mankind and not of markets," had expressed in a sentence the folly of their economic creed.

He spoke of the history and his speech dealt entirely with the subject of tariff and low tariff, and the relative effect of each upon the country. He reviewed the various tariff measures, from the first in 1789 down to the issues of 1844.

Robert J. Walker of Alabama, then secretary of the treasury, and under whom the protective tariff of 1842 was pulled down and the free trade tariff of 1840 was placed before congress. The bill was passed, but did not become law.

Gen. Harrison's speech was a general method of discussing the surplus.

Warren cited in comparison with the utterances of Cleveland on the same subject, and the structure of national history, whereupon Gen. Harrison and Blaine instituted comparisons between the democrats of then and those of now. He held up the disastrous results of the change of 1842 as a warning that the tariff should not be lowered again. He said that it was not right that it be now. Blaine's speech was designed to present a history of tariff situations analogous to the present, and in each case his conclusions were strongly in favor of the direction of history and the defeat of the democratic endeavor.

Speeches were then made by John F. Ferry, Rev. W. R. Derrick (colored) and others.

A parade by a torchlight procession of 500 men was a feature of the demonstration. Blaine will start West Monday night.
